

Intern Jamie Shopland

Jamie is currently interning with the FCCFW as she pursues her undergraduate degree in Law and Society from Hood College. She is a member of the Hood College Maryland Student Legislature (MSL) delegation and was recently nominated for the position of Attorney General with MSL. She has 10 years of professional experience, honing her skills in a variety of areas including project management, training administration, coordination, and documentation, customer service, quality control and assurance, consumer protection, legal/investigative research, analysis and writing, and direct marketing. Jamie possesses a Certificate in Paralegal Studies from Indiana University as well as an Associates of Arts in General Studies from Frederick Community College. Her passion for the law, politics, and addressing women's issues lead to her interest in the FCCFW. She resides in Urbana with her husband, Donald Shopland.
